We have a lovely Andamooka Honey Matrix stone which has been cleaned up and polished with a very high polish. It weighs 133.9cts and is only $245. My 9 year old grandchild was sitting at my desk on the weekend, she looked at this stone and said "Grampy, you should carve this into an elephant" and looking at this stone I can see an elephant's head and trunk. The back of the elephant you would just have to put some legs on it or I suppose it could be an elephant lying down.

I have just shown it to my personal assistant, Heather, and she said "Oh what a beautiful stone, when I looked at it I saw a snail".

It would make one hell of a pendant without being carved, polished or even touched. If you are interested get back to us.

Rather than go to all the work of offering this to our clients, just one stone we have a beautiful Boulder stone here for $125 which weighs 4.1oz, you can see it has a beautiful face.

Again if this comes to you and you are not interested in rough I have put in a couple of what we call "skinny shells", they both have holes drilled in them so you can put something through it and wear them as pendants straight away. There is a gem shell there 4.47cts for only $195, they are thin but they seem to have strength in that they have quite a curve in them. The second one is 7.64cts and has a very nice huge face with lovely patches of blue and green that keep moving over the stone as you roll it around, that stone is only $229.

I can highly recommend these four pieces to you and in particular the Andamooka natural Honey Matrix. If you are a carver you might like to do some more work on it, if you are not you can use it as a specimen, a pendant or cut it into matching earrings, ring and pendant for the bargain price of $245. This stone has not been treated it was just taken from the ground, cleaned up and polished.

Remember first in best dressed.

Regards

Murray
